ACCLAIMED: young actors perform a scene from Just

A SCHOOL theatre company has been invited to perform at one of the Edinburgh Festival's top venues this summer.

Young actors from Corelli College in Kidbrooke will be performing Ali Smith's satirical play, Just, at the Assembly Rooms in Edinburgh – as long as they can raise enough money to pay for the trip.

Corelli Theatre Company has launched a crowdfunding site to help them raise the £10,000 they need for travel, accommodation and venue hire.

Director Lucy Cuthbertson said: "The experience of going to Edinburgh for our young people is one they will never forget and in some cases it is literally life-changing."

“That will be intensified by the prestige of performing at the Assembly Rooms, normally the preserve of experienced professionals and unprecedented for a student show.

"The cast is large and even the cheapest hostel accommodation for a week with a group of 25 is a huge amount but I am confident we can do it."

The theatre company is regarded as one of the most outstanding school-based companies in the UK and won national acclaim with its production in 2008 of another Ali Smith play, Hotel World.

It is ten years since they last produced Just when they were chosen to perform on the Olivier stage at the National Theatre.

"It was an astonishing night that none of us will ever forget. Returning to the play a decade later has been really enjoyable," Lucy said, adding that the company has a long relationship with Ali Smith who suggested they revive the play.

The group works closely with Greenwich Theatre and has also performed at Riverside Studios in Hammersmith, Cutty Sark Studio Theatre and the Edinburgh Fringe.

Funding earmarked for Woolwich church repairs

A NINETEENTH century church in Woolwich is in line to receive £250,000 from the Heritage Lottery Fund for urgent repairs.

St Peter the Apostle church, built in 1843, is a grade II listed building and one of the oldest Catholic churches in London. It is one of only three in the capital designed by AWN Pugin, who was well known for promoting the Victorian Gothic revival.

The church, in Woolwich New Road, has been assessed by Historic England as heritage at risk and urgently needs a new roof and decorative stonework restored.

The money has been earmarked for the repairs and the church will initially receiving £43,000 so the parish can get to the stage where contracts can be given. It can then apply for the balance of the money for the work to go ahead.

The grant will go towards the £900,000 cost of the work, which will include projects on the history and heritage of the church to encourage wider interest in the building.

Parish priest, Father Michael Branch, said: "We're delighted that the Heritage Lottery Fund has given us this support. The church has been an important element in the lives of many different communities in the past 170 years. We can now look forward to it serving an even wider range of communities, for generations to come."

He said the parish was keen to work with other heritage groups to help highlight the church's role as one of the few surviving buildings from Woolwich's early Victorian era.

An area of the church will be adapted for a series of free exhibitions on themes developed with schools and other partners.

LISTED: St Peter the Apostle church is one of the oldest catholic churches in London

The parish hopes it will become a well-used resource for local schools and other groups pursuing interests in the Victorian period, Gothic revival architecture, art, Irish immigration, and local and military history.

Latest honour for community stalwart

HUMBLED: Dr Tariq Abbasi has been appointed as a Deputy Lieutenant of Greater London

90th birthday beacons for Her Majesty the Queen

A BLAZE OF GLORY: Army cadets in 2012 when beacons were lit for the Queen's Diamond Jubilee

COME and join the Royal Borough of Greenwich celebrations for the Queen's 90th birthday on Thursday, April 21. Three beacons will be lit across the borough - in General Gordon Square, Oxleas Meadow in Shooters Hill and at Cutty Sark Gardens, Greenwich.

They will join more than a thousand other beacons being lit across the United Kingdom and beyond. The first beacon will be lit by the Queen at Windsor Castle. The royal borough events all begin at 7.30pm and there will be royal-themed entertainment with the Air Cadets Band and other local bands playing music at the different locations. The events will end with the lighting of the beacons at 8.30pm.

● More information about the individual events can be found at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/events

LOCAL community figure Dr Tariq Abbasi described himself as "humbled" after he was appointed as a Deputy Lieutenant of Greater London in recognition of his role in the borough over the last 25 years.

It is the second honour Dr Abbasi has received in a matter of weeks after he was granted Freedom of the Borough last month.

Deputy Lieutenants are appointed by the Lord Lieutenant to assist him in his duties representing the Queen at civic, voluntary and social activities within London.

They are chosen among distinguished London residents who either have served their community or have a history of service in other fields.

Dr Abbasi has played an important role in the royal borough for 25 years, firstly as director of the Greenwich Islamic Centre and now as director general of the World Muslim Congress. He has been at the forefront of promoting community cohesion, tolerance and unity, and he is a founder member of Armed Forces Muslim Forum. In addition to running his own business and pursuing a career in both banking and real estate development, Dr Abbasi also serves as a trustee for several national and international charitable organisations, supporting and advocating peace and justice.

He has also assisted in educating young children from disadvantaged backgrounds.

Dr Abbasi told GT: "I have been humbled to have been appointed as a Deputy Lieutenant of Greater London. I look forward to serving my country and community to the best of my ability."

Dr Abbasi and Mary-Clare Parker, who was appointed as Deputy Lieutenant last year, will deputise for the Deputy Lieutenant for Royal Greenwich, Dr Pieter van der Merwe MBE, and assist other duties around London.

Top writers head to library for World Book Night

LEADING writers will be talking about their lives and work at Woolwich Centre Library on World Book Night.

And because the date falls on the 400th anniversary of William Shakespeare, the words of the Bard will also be celebrated.

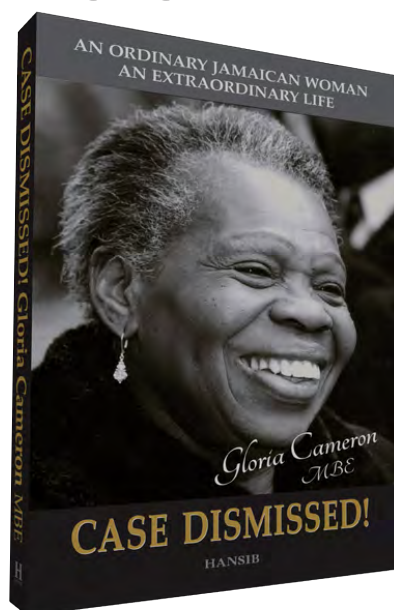

South African-born playwright and author Gillian Slovo will speak about her latest book, Ten Days, at the library on Saturday, April 23.

The daughter of anti-apartheid campaigners Joe Slovo and Ruth First, Gillian has written thirteen books, one of which - Red Dust - was made into a film starring Hilary Swank and Chiwetel Ejiofor.

Ten Days is this year's choice for the Cityread London programme which encourages reading by recommending titles.

Gillian's talk starts at 8pm and will follow a performance from 5.30pm of Shakespeare duets by students from Rose Bruford College, Sidcup as part of the Shakespeare 400 celebrations.

Both events are free and recommended

Gloria Cameron will be signing copies of the story of her life, and Gillian Slovo (pictured below) will talk about her new book, Ten Days for people aged 14 and over.

Earlier in the day, Gloria Cameron will read from her book Case Dismissed! An Ordinary Jamaican Woman; An Extraordinary Life.

The 83-year-old will look back on her life, from her childhood in Jamaica to her arrival in London 58 years ago, since when she has been widely involved in community affairs, was made a Justice of the Peace, and awarded an MBE in 1980.

"I really hope my story resonates with people everywhere and inspires them to pursue their passion and to become successful individuals," she said.

Gloria will also be signing copies of her book at the event which starts at 12noon and which is supported by the Woolwich-based Caribbean Social Forum.

THE Rotary Club of Greenwich is inviting new members to join as it enjoys its 90th anniversary year. The club is a group of professional and business people who hold weekly luncheon meetings with guest speakers. New members and volunteers can enjoy the opportunity to network, meet new friends and help to improve the lives of other people. Bill Harris, who has been a member for more than 30 years, said the rewards of being a Rotarian greatly exceeded his expectations.

"The fellowship, enhanced by weekly meetings, was like nothing that I had encountered anywhere else but the supreme benefit of this prestigious organisation is the knowledge that by means of various fund raising activities so much good can be done for so many people," he said. Anyone interested in joining can email the membership officer at ilkayzchirali@aol.com or Nellie Stefanova at nellies51@gmail.com, or call her on 07411 162769.

Shatu Garba, president of the Rotary Club of Greenwich, president-elect Sarah Campbell and future president Nellie Stefanova with a cake celebrating the club's 90th anniversary

Consultations open... have your say

THE council is looking at internet services and online connectivity and is urging residents and local businesses to take part in a survey before it closes later this month.

The consultation is part of a review into the demand for ultra-fast broadband, as well as the future plans of the main telecommunications providers in the borough.

Subject to the outcome of the consultation, the council would need to identify how improvements can be funded.

Delivering better internet connectivity is a part of the council's Smart City Strategy - which aims to utilise 'smarter' technologies to improve services for residents, strengthen the economy and bring in new investment.

The consultation closes on April 23 and is seeking views of residents and local businesses on internet connectivity, as well as their priorities and their requirements for the future.

As part of the plans, the council is also inviting leading and prospective telecommunication firms to set out their investment plans for the borough.

● To take part in the consultation go to www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/haveyoursay or send comments to Digital Greenwich (Broadband Survey), 10th Floor, 6 Mitre Passage, SE10 0ER.

● To take part, you will need to know your broadband speed - you can find out how to check it here www.broadbandspeedchecker.co.uk/

● Residents with further questions can also email internetsurvey@digitalgreenwich.com

RESIDENTS are invited to have their say on several other consultations:

- the Thomas Street Masterplan supplementary planning document (SPD) concerning redevelopment of a site in Woolwich - consultation ends on Tuesday, May 3
- the Charlton Village conservation area - ends on May 2
- a mental health survey, asking for views on current support available for people who live with a mental health condition, or look after someone, know someone or work professionally with someone who has a mental health condition - end on Friday, April 29.

STUDENTS from four of the borough's school will be taking part in a festival of youth dance. Greenwich Spring Sharings will be performed St Paul's Academy on Friday, April 29 when young dancers from the school will be joined by pupils from St Thomas More Catholic School, Shooters Hill Sixth Form and Woolwich Polytechnic. Spring Sharings is part of the Step Into Dance programme which encourages dancing in secondary schools. Performances are held in different London boroughs, supported by the Royal Academy of Dance and the Jack Petchey Foundation. Groups are selected from the performances to audition for Step LIVE! 2016, the annual showcase for the Step Into Dance programme which will take place at Sadler's Wells Theatre on July 9.

One year to go

ANCHORS AWAY:
the Dar Młodzieży
training ship sails
past Greenwich
at the 2014 Tall
Ships Festival

THE countdown to the Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Festival 2017 has begun, with just one year to go before a stunning fleet of Tall Ships gathers in the Thames at Woolwich and Greenwich.

Next Easter's festivities, starting on April 13, are set to hand a huge boost to the local economy and businesses, with hundreds of thousands of visitors expected to arrive.

The Tall Ships Festival in 2014 proved a fantastic occasion for the borough, attended by 1.1 million visitors and bringing £17.7 million into the local economy.

From April 13-16, ships will be anchored at two festival sites – at the Maritime Greenwich UNESCO World Heritage Site in Greenwich town centre, and Royal Arsenal Riverside in Woolwich.

It will end with a finale of a huge Parade of Sail on April 16 when around 40 tall ships will sail down the Thames in convoy en route to Quebec, Canada.

Working alongside the organisers over the next few months will be Lady Rona Delves Broughton (left) who has agreed to be patron of the 2017 festival.

The owner of the Mercure London Greenwich Hotel, Lady Delves Broughton was involved in the 2014 event as a sponsor and business partner.

She told GT: "I am both delighted and honoured to be the patron of the Tall Ships Festival 2017.

"Together with the council our intention is to make this festival even more spectacular than the 2014 event and that it will be enjoyed by even more participants and watched not only by local residents but reach out to a far wider audience than before.

"I am confident the 2017 festival will be a superb spectacle for residents and bring many visitors to Royal Greenwich which is expected to create great benefit to local businesses."

Cllr Denise Hyland, leader of the council, said: "One year from now the majestic Tall Ships will once again arrive in the royal borough and I look forward to welcoming them for another unforgettable event.

"The Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Festival 2017 is a unique opportunity to attract visitors from across the UK and the world, boosting the local economy and providing young people with an experience that could help shape their future by developing their confidence and building leadership and teamwork skills.

"I would like to thank Lady Delves Broughton on behalf of the royal borough for agreeing to become patron of the Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Festival 2017. Her support will help to significantly raise the event's profile, and will really help to make the festival the best it can be."

The council is also working with local businesses to ensure that they get the most out of the festival.

Would you share your daily life?

A SERVICE that helps residents with disabilities to enjoy a full and independent life is looking to recruit new carers.

Royal Greenwich Shared Lives is a unique initiative which recruits ordinary people within the community to provide accommodation, care and support for adults with a learning disability and other needs.

The support offered by carers enables them to live as independent a life as possible, living as part of the carer's family and within the local community.

Potential carers will need a spare room in their home and the capacity to provide the required care and support to the person placed. Previous experience in the care field is desirable but not essential and the scheme is keen to recruit carers from all sections of the community.

In return the council will pay a placement fee for each person placed and provide the carer with training and on-going support.

Sudha Shah has been sharing her Thamesmead home since 2010 with Colin, an adult with moderate learning disabilities. She told GT: "I grew up in India surrounded by an extended family, so when I took redundancy from my job as a teaching assistant I wanted play a caring role."

"Colin is a very sociable person and volunteers every day at the café in the Eltham Centre. To care for him through Shared Lives is so rewarding. His family are really appreciative and a great support too."

The Shared Lives scheme will be promoting the service at a number of locations during April and May, followed by an open event in June where people can go along and find out more about what's involved in being a carer.

The scheme is registered with the Care Quality Commission (CQC) and all Shared Lives carers are required to meet the standards set by Royal Greenwich as well as legislation set by the Department of Health and inspected by CQC.

● Contact 020 8921 6120 for an informal discussion about becoming a carer and to book a place on the open event. More information can also be found at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/sharedlives

On April 16 it will be open from 10am-4pm when there will tours and talks about the growing plots, orchard and wildflower bank as well as the historic park itself.

There will be refreshments, children's activities, a plant sale and a fund raising bric-a-brac stall.

Tim Anderson, chair of the community garden, said: "The Big Dig Day is about encouraging people and families to visit their local community garden. Whether you are an experienced gardener or new to gardening or just want to see how your local project is developing you will be welcome."

The garden, now in its fourth year, is a not-for-profit voluntary community project. Visitors on Saturday can join the waiting list for growing beds.

Final call to register to vote on May 5

THE deadline to register to vote is Monday, April 18.

With less than a week to go, residents are being urged to get their names on the ballot so they can vote in the Mayoral and Assembly elections on May 5.

Those who have moved home in the last 12 months or who have not previously registered to vote at their current address need to make sure they are on the electoral register in order to put their cross in the box.

The Electoral Commission reports that in 2015, more than one million applications to register were made in the final week so there is still time to get your name down.

It takes only a few minutes and also means that you will be registered in good time for the referendum, on June 23, on the UK's membership of the European Union.

Find out how to register quickly at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/elections

You will already be registered if you voted at the General Election in 2015, responded to all letters from the elections office and have not changed address.

If you are not sure, you can find out if you are on the register by contacting the Greenwich elections office - email elect@royalgreenwich.gov.uk or call 020 8921 5184.

Your commission, should you wish to accept it...

THE council is looking to recruit a team of young people to help shape services... for young people.

The new team – known as Young Commissioners – will be invited to contribute their ideas about young people's services and to help select the organisations that run them in the future.

They'll also be able to take part in research projects, monitor services and gather the views of young people using them.

Services under the scrutiny of young people will include those providing social care and public health, as well as short breaks for disabled children and young people, services for children in care, and youth services. The Young Commissioners should be aged between 13 and 19 (or up to 25 if the young person has a disability). They will receive training before they take on the role, and get the chance to take part in team building activities and social events.

Chad Ndebele, 17, a pupil at The John Roan School, was part of a panel of young people who helped select the organisation that will run public health services for young people from the autumn.

"I got to work with a very diverse and strong group of young people," he said. "Each of us brought very different experiences which helped us in our role of representing the young people who will use those public health services in the future."

Cllr Miranda Williams, cabinet member for children's services, said: "The council works with a wide range of organisations that provide services for young people. And while we work hard to capture their views, we are keen to have young people involved throughout the process - from planning new services to monitoring performance. I'd therefore encourage young people to sign up and help us shape our services."

Spotlight on autism

ALL SMILES: Tommy with Michelle O'Brien from Greenwich Day Opportunities

LOCAL people had the opportunity to learn about autism at a series of events providing support to people with autism and their carers.

The council joined with local organisations such as the National Autistic Society (Greenwich branch), Bridging the Gap, and Oxleas NHS Foundation Trust at an event, hosted by the National Maritime Museum, on World Autism Awareness Day, April 2.

The event was attended by the mayor, Cllr Norman Adams, and deputy leader of the council, Cllr John Fahy, who chatted to stall

The Royal Observatory Greenwich also held a planetarium show for children with an autistic spectrum condition, alongside their families and carers. The event, titled Morning Stars, gave visitors the chance to explore the night sky and find out from an astronomer what was visible in the sky that night and in the month ahead.

Volunteers keep it clean

Dedicated Environment Champions who encourage a sense of pride in the borough

THE borough's Environment Champions have been out in force, continuing their voluntary work clearing litter and other rubbish.

In their latest outing, for a litter-pick on Woolwich Common, they collected 22 bags of rubbish in just a few hours.

They were joined by other dedicated volunteer groups in the clean-up in which they even found discarded bank notes among the litter.

Environment Champions raise concerns about environmental issues in their neighbourhoods while encouraging a sense of pride in the areas where they live.

Volunteers help to keep their neighbourhoods clean and green by organising clean-ups and working closely with the council on tackling environmental crime such as fly-tipping and graffiti.

Richard Jarvis, who has been an Environment Champion for three years and a member of the Wonderful Woolwich campaign for almost as long, says he considers caring for the environment to be a crucial duty for everyone.

Reflecting on the strength of the Environment Champions scheme, he said: "These clean-up efforts are a testament to the strength of the old community spirit in the borough. Working with the council to educate members of the public on protecting the environment is vital for us moving forward."

Carole O'Toole has been an Environment Champion for more than 10 years and was spurred on to join through her interest in ecology, microbiology (in which she holds a degree) and the wider environment.

"The volunteer base on these litter picks is strong and works well with the council in responding to reports of littering. I only wish that the people who attend these litter picks could meet those committing the littering," she said.

// These clean-up efforts are a testament to the strength of the old community spirit in the borough //

Volunteers in the Environment Champions scheme, resident associations, housing representatives and friends of parks groups were formally thanked for their work at a Town Hall reception last month.

Cllr Danny Thorpe, cabinet member for regeneration and transport, and the mayor, Cllr Norman Adams, spoke at the event, which is held annually to recognise the tremendous achievements of residents in making the borough a cleaner and greener place.

Mutmahim Roaf from Greenwich Action for Voluntary Services (GAVS) described the support and development on offer to local volunteers, while Allison Ogden-Newton (pictured left with the mayor), chief executive of Keep Britain Tidy, spoke about the success of the Clean for the Queen campaign marking Her Majesty's 90th birthday.

Cllr Jackie Smith, cabinet member for community safety and environment, said: "I'm delighted that hard-working and dedicated volunteers who help make this borough a cleaner and greener place, were formally thanked at this annual event."

"The Royal Borough of Greenwich continues to work very closely with the Environment Champions scheme and other key volunteer groups in both pro-actively tackling environmental crime and taking a more preventative approach through engaging with members of the public."

Food outlet fined for health and safety breaches

THE owner of a Woolwich food outlet has been fined £1,500 for breaches of food and health & safety regulations that included storing mouldy fish and using dangerous electrical equipment.

Bexley Magistrates' Court heard that Abiodun Williams, the owner of Olives in Plumstead Road, failed to keep the premises clean and in a good state of repair.

The shop's electrical system was also not properly maintained and council officers found exposed wiring and a number of extension cables in use.

Appearing in court on March 21, Mr Williams admitted several breaches of food safety regulations and of the Health and Safety at Work Act.

He was ordered to pay £1,500 in fines and £1,397 prosecution costs.

During visits to the premises, the council's planning enforcement team found the rear yard was being used as a hot food takeaway.

Mr Williams was served with an enforcement notice to cease this activity, which was later upheld at appeal.

The defendant told the court on March 21 that remedial action had been taken at the shop: a new hand wash basin had been installed, the back of the store had been extensively cleaned and all food was now correctly labelled.

Cllr Jackie Smith, cabinet member for community, safety and environment, said: "The owners of such outlets must know that they are not above the law. The Royal Borough of Greenwich will continue to firmly reprimand any businesses failing to meet such basic health and safety standards."

The Big London ENERGY SWITCH

A scheme to help Londoners get a better deal on their gas and electricity bills

Over 6000 Greenwich residents have registered for the Big London Energy Switch since the scheme began. Average savings in Greenwich from the October 2015 round were over £250, and winning tariffs better than anything available direct from suppliers or via price comparison services.

How does the scheme work?

- Ⓔ The Big London Energy Switch is a collective switching scheme being run by the Royal Borough of Greenwich and a number of other councils in London
- Ⓔ By gathering together a large number of people who want to lower their gas and electricity bills the Big London Energy Switch, using a third party 'switching provider', can encourage energy companies to offer their lowest prices
- Ⓔ Once registration is closed, all the energy companies are invited to offer their best prices to everyone who registered
- Ⓔ You will then receive details of exactly how much money you could potentially save by switching if you accept the offer
- Ⓔ You can choose to accept the offer or not

Watching wildlife

Close-up of a water boatman

THE Greenwich Peninsula Ecology Park is a real gem of a nature reserve and a must for local people wanting to see great flora and fauna.

An outstanding place to see and hear wildlife whether you are an expert or beginner, the park harbours dozens of species, ranging from birds such as reed warblers and common terns, to the UK's largest species of dragonfly - the brightly coloured Emperor.

During spring, the park begins to come back to life with willow trees budding with their familiar soft grey flowers, bumblebees, coming out of hibernation to set up new colonies and the large yellow flowers of the marsh marigold coming into bloom.

Many birds are singing and it is a really good time of year to stop somewhere in the park and just listen. Each bird has its own distinctive song and you can quickly learn to identify birds from their sound alone, like the tiny wren with its musical song or sonorous melodies of the robin and blackbird. The park's frogs have already laid frogspawn and newts are gathering in or near the water, ready to pair up and perform their courtship dances in the lakes.

Senior warden Joanne Smith told GT: "Greenwich Peninsula Ecology Park is a wonderful place to spot a fascinating variety of wildlife in an urban setting, with the added benefit of easy access for wheelchairs, prams and buggies. I have worked at the park for 14 years now and this place still amazes me. I have spotted a new species of plant or animal every year that I have been here.

"Because the boardwalks go through the habitats, it's one of the best spots to get close-up views of common terns and reed warblers when they arrive in the spring."

The four-and-a-half acre wetland habitat is owned by the Land Trust and managed by the Conservation Volunteers. It is open Wednesday to Sunday from 10am to 5pm (dusk in winter) and has very good access for wheelchairs, plus accessible bird hides and toilet facilities.

The Ecology Park organises practical volunteer workdays, reparation work for young offenders, school visits, work experience placements, guided tours and seasonal events as well as holiday activities for all ages. The park has become popular with local schools and hundreds of children have benefited from a hands-on experience of nature.

The three paths converge at Shooters Hill, and descend towards Eltham. There are plenty of woodland birds to be seen along the way, including green and greater-spotted woodpeckers, sparrowhawks and, if you are very lucky, a majestic red kite or peregrine falcon soaring high overhead.

The Tarn

A stunning landscaped garden and lake, the Tarn in Eltham hosts interesting wildfowl and a bird sanctuary, the gardens boast many original features dating back to the 1930s.

Marsh marigold

A hedgehog

Looking after the hedgehogs

HEDGEHOG Awareness Week is running from May 1-7 and residents are urged to get involved and help the small spiky mammal.

Organised by the British Hedgehog Preservation Society (BHPS), the campaign takes place annually across the country and aims to highlight the problems hedgehogs face and how people can give them a helping hand.

This year efforts are focussed on strimmers and cutting machines as this machinery can cause terrible injuries and deaths to hedgehogs, which are already threatened on a national level.

BHPS is asking people to check areas carefully before using such machinery to avoid harming the animals.

BHPS chief executive Fay Vass said: "We are asking people to pledge to do at least one positive thing for hedgehogs during the week and if possible let us know, send us pictures of the hedgehog hole or home you create, or from the event you organise."

THE heart-warming family musical Fiddler on the Roof is the latest ambitious challenge taken on by the New Eltham Community Productions.

With memorable songs such as If I Were a Rich Man and Matchmaker, the story was made into a popular film in 1971 with the Israeli actor Topol playing the lead character.

Set in a Jewish community in pre-revolutionary Russia, dairyman Tevye struggles to maintain the traditions of his faith as each of his daughters chooses a husband.

The lead role in the NECP musical is taken by Neil Stevens who, along with the most of the other men in the cast, has grown a beard for the production.

Director Hannah Boyd said she chose Fiddler on the Roof because it suited the family-feel of the group.

"It is very family orientated and we have a wide range of ages in the group so I thought it would fit really well," Hannah told GT.

The family theme follows in the actual casting with a mother and daughter playing those roles in the play, and two sisters doing the same.

And for some of the cast, it is a trip down memory lane: the former New Eltham Operatic Society performed the musical in 1978 and two of the actors were in the original.

Rachel King, who plays Tevye's wife Golda, was a little girl in the operatic society's original version while Sybil Price, now in the chorus, played one of their daughters back in 1978.

Yente, the matchmaker, is played

Drama student invited to Globe festival

A DRAMA student from Eltham was among a group of young actors invited to take part in a festival that has helped launch several acting careers.

Robert Ginty, a former pupil of St Mary's Primary School and Colfes School in Lee, was among 38 students from 19 drama schools involved in the Sam Wanamaker Festival held at Shakespeare's Globe on April 3.

The annual festival is regarded as a springboard for aspiring actors and has helped launch many careers. Among those who have taken part in the past are Andrew Garfield, who took the lead in The Amazing Spiderman, and Michelle Dockery of Downton Abbey fame.

Now studying at the Royal Conservatoire of Scotland in Glasgow, Robert said: "I feel privileged to get the opportunity to stand on the stage during what I consider to be the theatre occasion of the year."

ARTIST Tim Cousins is holding the second retrospective of his work at the Art in Perpetuity Trust gallery in Greenwich. Two years after the first part featured his paintings in 2014, he is showing A Glance Back II, which takes a look at his drawings. Tim uses a range of materials - including pencil, charcoal, gouache, and brush and ink - in his work, which the gallery describes as "exciting and thought-provoking". This latest exhibition is dedicated to his former tutor at Ravensbourne College of Art, Vic Kuell, who died last year. "He was the first person who suggested to me that drawing could involve any medium. He was always supportive of me and I doubt very much if I would have become an artist without his help," Tim writes in the exhibition catalogue. A Glance Back II is at the Art Hub Gallery, 5-9 Creekside, Greenwich until Sunday, April 17. Entry is free and the gallery is open Thursday to Sunday, 1-5pm. For more information visit www.arthub.org.uk

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 489

BIDDING FOR PROPERTIES

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B1/B2 both in priority date order. Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B1 is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly
- or
- B2 homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B1/B2.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of three ways

- Text bidding is now available and the number to use is 07786207913. For further information please see page 2, or
- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 20 April 2016 at midday. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 17 April 2016.

THREE determined councillors will be testing their stamina and willpower when they run in the Virgin Money London Marathon next weekend in aid of the Mayor's Charity Appeal.

by Jane Eyles

Councillors Danny Thorpe, Mehboob Khan and Chris Lloyd are training hard in preparation for the race on Sunday, April 24. They, along with four other runners on Mayor Cllr Norman

Adams' team - including Jane Borrett from Greenwich and Bexley Community Hospice - are hoping to raise more than £3,000. The money will go towards the mayor's charities - the Early Dove School in Zambia, which supports more than 200 children who are mainly orphans and victims of AIDS, and the building of a sensory garden at the hospice.
